Our long-term goal is to understand the role of a novel superfamily of proteins, named PIN (plant inducible nitrogen transporters). We propose that PIN proteins can act as "amino acid transporters", but can also be "molecular integrators" that play an important role in the integration of various signals in nitrogen signaling during plant development. Recently, we have isolated the first member of the PIN superfamily, PIC1 (plant inducible co-expression), from Arabidopsis. PIC1 is induced by nitrate in roots and in leaves of Arabidopsis. The p
